

And God blessed them, and God said unto them, Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it, and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth. Gen 1:28

If people raise fish for a living instead of building big ranches, there will be no problem in feeding a single household with just fifty pyung of land. You can draw up as much sea water as you like to the top of a high mountain. If there isn't enough, you can add some salt water to adjust the saltiness. You can do that as much as you like. If you set up a fish farm in the mountains and have one person take care of it, you can raise enough fish to feed hundreds and millions of people. CSG 1848

Greetings!

In Sunday's sermon, "Building the Real CIG"

Hyung Jin Nim discusses how developing a real relationship with nature is an essential part of knowing God and building God's kingdom on earth. Cheon Il Guk is made up of free and responsible citizens, not "slaves" who are indebted to, or indoctrinated by, government. Just as Father expressed confidence to walk into any environment and find a way not only to survive, but to help others to do so, we can be prepared for the challenging times that Father often predicted and trained us for! Just like many biblical figures, we can relate more deeply to the word of God (debar) in the "midbar," or wilderness.

Hyung Jin Nim shares about what he learned fishing with Father, hunting in Alaska, and in the wilderness of the Pantanal in South America.

Yeonah Nim explains about her challenges to become more transparent. Satan creates anxiety where there is a part of our lives that we are hiding. Accepting and being grateful for how God made us, and sharing that, helps us to receive His gifts of peace, love, joy, happiness and righteousness.

In advance of observing the third year after Father's Seonghwa, I'd like to share a prose poem from my wife, Miho.

Letter to True Father 3 Years After His Seonghwa

Dearest True Father,

It's almost three years since you ascended to the spirit world. Over fifty years ago you came to this country. You traveled to every state to share a "day of hope" with the American people. The powerful saw you as a threat. They thought they could scare you away forever, but instead you chose to go to Danbury. You paid for America's arrogance by mopping prison floors. While washing your prison clothes full of holes, I cried. You wanted to save this nation even if it meant going to a miserable place.

Riding my bike in the early morning, I feel you are whispering in the wind, "hi, Miho, how are you doing?" When I say, "Father, I miss you so much!" your words come back, "Don't cry, I am with you always."

When I see a bird, you are looking at me through its small eyes, saying, "Don't worry. I know everything that is going on. Good and evil have to separate. Trust me!"

When Hyung Jin Nim speaks, you, Father, are speaking, like thunder, through him. You are pushing us, with a big smile, through him. His sweat is your sweat.

Two weeks ago he said with tears, "(True) Mother is MY mom." We were shocked by the harsh things he said, but he was shocked 1,000 more times than us. Still he has to stand for God and True Father's will, on the front line.

This month, Hyung Jin Nim is spending each day in the blazing sun, cutting trees to build a small house with hand tools. Is his axe like the ones used by the early settlers? He has to strike each tree more than 1,000 times to cut it down. Five or six trees a day...

His travails remind me of Father leaving early each morning for the sea. Father would sit on a chair in his fishing boat for five or six hours, the sun blazing down, not moving even one inch. We had to check whether Father is breathing or not. Suddenly he said, "I'm alright. Don't worry," and returned to his silent praying for several more hours, while the ocean swells rocked the boat back and forth as if it were a child's toy.

Each time he swings the axe, Hyung Jin Nim is praying, "Heavenly Father, let your nation have a new beginning." Yeonah Nim and their 5 children are sweating at his side. For many hours they strip bark off the trees, their once-soft hands blistering. I can see that in her heart, she is swinging the axe together with him 1,000 times.

In my mind, I am swinging an axe together with him 1,000 times, too. With each blow, I say to Father, "Thank you for leaving your courageous son to lead us through the wilderness. He is so much like you! We will never leave you. We will see you face to face soon. Aju!"
